Texas Into Five States? No April Fool Joke, Pardner

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — When Texas joined the union in 1845, it retained the right to divide itself into as many as five states.

Now two state lawmakers, Sen. Bob Gammage, a Houston Democrat, and Rep. Fred Agnich, a Dallas Republican, have introduced a bill calling for a public vote on the issue in 1976. The vote would be in the form of a nonbinding referendum.

Gammage got a telegram later saying, "You've got to be out of your damned mind."

But Gammage and Agnich say Eastern states have a disproportionate share of power in Congress. They say Texas could increase its clout by dividing and getting eight additional senators for the four new states.

"It's simply a warning to some of the people back East," Agnich said.

Since Gammage got the telegram suggesting he was insane, reactions have moderated somewhat.

"If you don't have the emotional blocks most Texans have, it sounds like a pretty good idea," Gammage said. "But I'll admit I have a block. I don't want to see it divided up. But it's something to think about."

"It's kind of interesting to see people's reactions," Agnich said. "The first reaction tends to be totally negative. Then after some thinking it tends to be less negative. My personal reaction is that at present the disadvantages outweigh the advantages."

Jack D. Knox, president of Summit Energy, Inc., of Dallas, wrote Gammage endorsing the idea to protect Texas oil and gas.

"This resource-rich area simply must have protection from the eastern liberal consumer group, and the only way I can see for us to do it is to utilize the considerable wisdom of our forebears and exercise our privilege of dividing this area into five separate states in terms of representation in Washington," Knox said.

Carl E. Blass, a Rosenberg, Tex., voter, didn't think it was such a good idea.

"Thanks for the comedy relief," Blass told Gammage. "Most Texans are after all Americans first and Texans second. To do what you advocate could better be done by secession."

A seventh-grade class from Hubbard Junior High School in Tyler, Tex., sent Gammage and Agnich a series of maps suggesting how Texas could be divided. One suggested naming a Panhandle state "Agnich."

Student David Archer said a new state created from southwestern Texas could be called "Playboy" and the capital could be at "Penthouse."

Gammage has asked for a Senate hearing but doubts Texans are ready to give up their claims of being the biggest state —except for that Johnny-come-lately Alaska.

Communists Overrun Coastal Cities

Threat to Saigon Increases

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops and infantry today overran the coastal cities of Qui Nhon, Tuy Hoa and Nha Trang as government defenses crumbled and the threat to Saigon increased by the hour. Rumors of a possible coup swept the capital.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu abruptly canceled a meeting with the U.S. Chief of Staff, Gen. Frederick Weyand, President Ford's special envoy, on the eve of his departure for the United States. No public explanation was given.

Former Foreign Minister Vu Van Mau, a militant Buddhist who helped engineer the overthrow of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem a decade ago, joined Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky today in asking Thieu to resign. Ky abruptly cancelled an interview with foreign newsmen, saying he was too tired.

Hanoi Radio demanded Thieu's overthrow but offered to negotiate a peace with a new government in Saigon.

In a broadcast monitored in Tokyo it called Thieu the "main obstacle to the settlement of political questions in Vietnam" and called for "an administration standing for peace, independence, democracy, (and) national concord."

It also repeated Hanoi's seven-point program of leniency for soldiers, police and officials who defect to the Viet Cong.

While government troops abandoned millions of dollars of U.S. equipment in their panicky flight —some sources said more than $1 billion worth — the first plane of a U.S. emergency airlift arrived in Saigon today with 14 105 mm howitzers and ammunition.

It was a drop in the bucket for the defense of Saigon where panic was increasing and foreigners began fleeing the country. President Ford has blamed the current debacle on failure of the U.S. Congress to grant more military aid to the Saigon government.

Military sources said Communist tanks swept through Nha Trang's streets virtually unopposed today as government troops fled, and Communist soldiers broke into the town jail and freed all the Viet Cong prisoners inside.

Military sources who reported the fall of Nha Trang said the only secure area tonight was the airport at the eastern end of the town. Travelers returning to Saigon from the airport tonight told of chaotic scenes as frantic passengers boarded the planes.

They said adults fought for space in the planes, and some parents threw their children into plane doorways. The U.S. Consulate flew its staff to the airport by helicopter because crowds clogged military checkpoints en route. Civilians filled bags with beach sand to protect their homes against shelling.

The travelers reported hearing heavy artillery and gunfire in the city as the Communist troops arrived.

The province chief made a frantic telephone call to Saigon command headquarters, the sources said.

"I am leaving," he was quoted as saying. "The situation is hopeless." Then he hung up without waiting for orders.

The government abandoned Qui Nhon, South Vietnam's fourth largest city 250 miles north of Saigon, without a fight, and the loss of Binh Dinh province became inevitable.

Tuy Hoa, 44 miles south of Qui Nhon, was evacuated by boat this morning, military sources said.

The attack on Nha Trang, 188 miles northeast of Saigon forced the government to move its headquarters for the central region of South Vietnam 20 miles south to Cam Ranh Bay, military sources said.

They said the only effective government units in the Nha Trang area were rangers involved in heavy fighting north of the city, near Duc My training center and the town of Ninh Hoa.

Nha Trang, the capital of Khanh Hoa Province, once served as the headquarters for the U.S. Green Berets in Vietnam. It has a population of 170,000 persons, swollen by 60,000 refugees from northern areas seized by the Communists.

It was the 15th provincial capital lost to the Communists, who completely control all of 13 provinces and more than half of South Vietnam's territory.

There was no indication how many Americans from the U.S. Consulate in Nha Trang were in the city when the Communists moved in. Most had already fled; Americans at Qhi Nhon and Tuy Hoa already had left.

Esopus Planners Reject BOCES Request

NEW PALTZ — Ulster County BOCES board members will meet in special session Wednesday night to discuss the options left them following the rejection of a use variance request which, if approved, would have allowed BOCES to consolidate its teaching facilities in a vacant Port Ewen factory building.

The request for a variance was made last Thursday before the Esopus Town Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA), which met in closed session following the public meeting and voted down the proposal.

"We're very disappointed," said Dr. Jack L. Roosa, BOCES executive officer.

"We thought we'd in effect be upgrading the area, but they (the ZBA) turned us down," Roosa told the Freeman.

BOCES sought the usee variance in order to permit it to consolidate classes, now being held in six different buildings, in the former Barclay Knitwear building , which has been vacant since last year. The site, owned by Port Ewen Realty Co., is zoned for light industrial use.

The building had already been apporved for BOCES use by the State Education Department. BOCES teaches some 800 high school students and about 300 adult education students in more than 30 occupational areas.

Of the meeting to be held Wednesday, Roosa said he doesn't expect any action to result immediately.

"I really don't know what avenues are open to us, but whatever avenues are available will be taken," he said. The meeting will not be open to the public, according to Roosa.

Reaction to the proposal at the public meeting last Thursday seemed favorable. But ZBA Chariman Harold Coffey explained that there "are certain legal constraints" on the ZBA which were not overcome by arguments in favor of the variance.

According to Coffey, the owner of a property, in order to be granted a variance, must demonstrate that he's being denied a resonable return on his investment or that a property cannot by utilized under its zoned use.

"The board felt the owners didn't demonstrate this," Coffey told the Freeman.

Coffey added that had the use variance been granted "it would mean a significant change in the area," and that "the net result of too many variances is no zoning."

The request was rejected by a three to two vote of the seven-member ZBA. Coffey said, explaining that one member was absent and that he, himself, only voted in case of a tie. Four votes in favor of the variance were needed in order for it to pass, he said.

Asked what recourse he thought BOCES might have, Coffey suggested that they could go to court, that they could have a rehearing before the ZBA or that they could go to the town planning board and ask to have the site rezoned.

Strike Off After CSEA Session

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — After a tumultuous meeting which at one point had approved a midnight strike against the state, the Civil Service Employees Association today stood ready to present its case to a fact-finding panel selected by a state agency.

And, Dr. Theodore C. Wenzl, president of the union representing 147,000 state workers, faced the task of reestablishing himself as leader of the 300,000member labor organization after an unsuccessful attempt to lead his members in a walkout.

Monday, during a meeting of the CSEA's 1,200 delegates, the union backed away from what Wenzl had described as an "eyeball to eyeball" confrontation with Gov. Hugh L. Carey and voted to accept a proposal first offered by Carey —that the dispute be presented to factfinders.

However, the delegates, after a five-hour meeting ending only six hours before a strike deadline, voted to begin a "rule book" action if fact-finders cannot bring about agreement on salary issues within two weeks.

And they decided to walk off their state jobs if a settlement was not reached after two weeks of the "rule book" action. The action thus puts off a possible strike for nearly a month.

The state's Public Employment Relations Board named a three-member panel, headed by Maurice C. Benewitz of Manhasset, to begin hearing both sides of the dispute at 10 a.m. Thursday. The other two members are John W. McConnell of Ithaca and Jonas Silver of North Merrick.

At their last meeting, union and state negotiators remained far apart on wages, the main issue in the negotions on a reopener clause of their contract, which runs for another year.

The union called for 15½ per cent across-the-board pay hikes, and the state had offered only a $290 cash grant in lieu of a raise.

The union's decision to back off from an immediate confrontation with the state came at the close of the meeting, called by Wenzl to gain approval of a strike recommendation handed down by the CSEA's negotiating team.

After Wenzl told delegates the negotiations with the state "have been non-productive," a delegate made a motion for a walkout at midnight.

Wenzl immediately called for a voice vote and declared the motion had carried.

Amid boos and catcalls from stunned delegates, Wenzl then called for a motion and a voice vote to adjourn the meeting. As delegates began a chant "roll call vote; roll call vote," Wenzl left the meeting via a side door of the theater in which it was being held.

A union vice president took over the podium after Wenzl left and shouting delegates demanded that the meeting continue.

What followed was a series of confusing motions, amendments, shouting floor debates over the legality of the proceeding and final agreement on the much compromised motion to present the dispute to fact-finders.

Wenzl returned when it became apparent only a handful of delegates were ready to follow him in a strike, but he was booed as he approached the dias.

Lawmakers' Idea... Away With June

BOSTON (UPI) — Rep. Barney Frank, D-Boston, Monday recommended temorary abolition of the month of June.

Frank says Gov. Michael S. Dukakis took the first step toward this in his deficiency budget when he asked the legislature to use all of the state's money normally allocated for June to pay expenses for April and May.

"In the spirit of cooperation with our governor that appears to pervade the legislature, I am willing to take the next logical step and do away with the whole inconvenient month," Frank said.

"The governor knew in January that we would have to get rid of one month this year," Frank said. If the governor had been willing to "bite the bullet earlier we could have abolished February instead of June."

A member of the House Ways and Means Committee, Frank has been at odds lately with the administration's approach to the state budget crisis.

He accused it of poor fiscal planning.

Rocky Cleared in Nursing Home Probe

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Temporary State Commission on Living Costs has cleared Nelson Rockefeller of using political influence to help nursing home operators while governor, but is critical of Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut and has asked that he be investigated by the special prosecutor probing the industry.

The commission, issuing its fourth and final report on nursing homes Monday, criticized the administration of former Mayor Robert F. Wagner. It said the question of whether Assembly Minority Leader Albert H. Blumenthal helped the nursing home industry is unclear.

The unit, created 19 months ago and credited with publicizing alleged Medicaid abuses and poor patient care in the nursing home industry, was cut out of Gov. Hugh L. Carey's budget and went out of business Monday night.

Assemblyman Andrew Stein, D-Manhattan, commission chairman, said in a summary of the final report that "the commission has found no evidence at all that Governor Rockefeller had attempted to use his considerable influence on behalf of either nursing home operators or the industry itself."

However, Stein, who was appointed commission chairman by Rockefeller, recommended that Charles J. Hynes, the state's special prosecutor for nursing homes, take a look at Steingut.

Stein repeated a previous charge that Steingut five times had attempted to steer the commission away from investigating the activities of nursing home owner Bernard Bergman.

In reviewing the role of Wagner, the commission said, "To be sure, the Wagner administration did take steps to deal with the proprietary nursing home problem. However, the reaction of the Wagner administration to this problem was apparently inadequate and unsuccessful."

The report, saying Blumenthal's testimony on his relationship to Bergman had been contradicted by various state Health Department officials, declared, "The final judgment as to where the truth lies must be made by other agencies investigating this matter, the special prosecutor and the Moreland Commission."

Concerning the statewide picture involving nursing homes, the commission said, "The hearings in Buffalo and Rochester revealed that the pattern of political involvement in the proprietary nursing home industry found in New York City was equally prevalent in Western New York."

Another Voyage for Sojourner

Sojourner Truth, the 19th century abolitionist, evangelist and former slave, once traveled the country campaigning for the rights of her people. On Monday, a statue of the Ulster County native embarked on a freedom trek of a different nature. A team of volunteers, led by County Legislator Larry E. Kithcart (D-City), removed the statue from the old city hall, where it had been left to deteriorate by city officials. The statue's new home—most fittingly—will be the Sojourner Truth School on Franklin Street. (Freeman photo)

March Goes Out As a Lion

By U P I

Parts of the East spent this first day of April digging out of a heavy snowstorm that dumped a foot and a half on sections of New England. Adverse weather also hit other parts of the nation Monday, the last day of March.

Five inches of new snow fell on blizzard-weary North Dakota, and heavy weekend rains caused flooding from the Mississippi Valley to the eastern Appalachians.

Six to eight inches of snow blanketed northern New England, and New Hampshire was hardest hit, with 18 inches of new snow at Jackson, N.H.

The mercury dipped to 2 below zero and winds gusted at 127 miles per hour atop milehigh Mt. Washington in New Hampshire.

Avalanche conditions delayed spring skiing at Tuckerman's Ravine in New Hampshire.

Highway 490 west of Rochester, N.Y., was closed for a time as police cleared away a massive traffic pileup. Many of the 60 cars involved skidded into ditches. There was another pileup, with 14 cars involved, near Hancock, N.Y. Forty inches of snow was on the ground at Highmarket, N.Y.

North Dakota, hard hit by a series of Holy Week storms which piled up 10-foot snowdrifts, closed roads and snarled traffic, got yet another wintry blast Monday. A new storm dropped 5 inches of snow on the state. Travel warnings for snow and blowing snow were up in Montana, Wyoming, South Dakota and Minnesota.

Flooding from heavy weekend rains plagued lowland communities from the Mississippi Valley to the eastern slope of the Appalachians.

Vatican Holdings

TURIN, Italy (UPI) — The Holy See's property is worth less than $120 million and reports that the church is four times as wealthy are nothing but "hearsay" and "gossip," the Vatican's chief financial officer said today.

Breaking with the Vatican's strict silence on finances, Cardinal Egidio Vagnozzi rejected an interviewer's estimate of the Holy See's holdings at $476 million. The interview was published in the monthly economic review Europa.

"I say that the productive assets of the Holy See in Italy and in the world are less than a quarter of that," said Vagnozzi, who as president of the Vatican Prefecture of Economic Affairs acts as budget and finance minister.

"I am not authorized to specify the figure but the assets are composed of real estate and stocks and bonds."

The cardinal cautioned the public "and Catholics in particular not to believe all that is written on Vatican finances because many statements are founded on hearsay, gossip by uninformed persons and on evaluations that have no foundation."

He said the $476 million figure did not include assets of individual dioceses, parishes and religious organizations.

LON NOL AND HIS WIFE (UPI)

Lon Nol Flies Into Exile

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — President Lon Nol of Cambodia flew into exile from his besieged capital today, paving the way for possible talks with Communist-led insurgents who have moved within four miles of Phnom Penh.

Minutes before his departure, military commanders moved troops to block breaches in the city's defense line to keep Khmer Rouge rebels from breaking through.

The 62-year-old Lon Nol flew with more than 30 persons from Pochentong Airport, under fire from insurgent 105mm howitzers and 107mm rockets.

Three rockets landed as Lon Nol boarded an Air Cambodge Caravelle jetliner for the American B52 bomber base at Utapao in neighboring Thailand.

Those departing included Prime Minister Long Boret and the family of Lon Nol's younger brother, Brig. Gen. Lon Non.

The marshal told the nation in a pre-taped radio address broadcast shortly after his departure that he would return to Cambodia when his health permitted and the country needed his presence.

It was the first official announcement he was leaving, and officials described the reference to his return as a pretense.

The Khmer Rouge insurgents had ruled out any chance of talks as long as Lon Nol remained in power. It was uncertain if they would be willing to negotiate now in light of their military successes.

U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean bade farewell to Lon Nol at the airport, stepping out of view behind the jetliner to say a few last words to him.

The president spent the morning at his residence at Chamcar Mon government palace, making final good-byes to close associates.

The insurgents have put Lon Nol and Long Boret on a death list. Cheng Heng, chief of state briefly in 1970 and also marked for death, left Cambodia Saturday for Paris.

The sources said Lon Nol would go into exile because of the stigma of ineffectiveness and corruption that has clouded the regime he has headed since ousting Prince Norodom Sihanouk in March, 1970.

Sihanouk is now living in Peking.

Within weeks after Lon Nol's takeover, American troops fighting in Vietnam moved into Cambodia in an announced attempt to clean out Viet Cong "sanctuaries."

The Khmer Rouge insurgents struck in force after the departure of the Americans, leaving the U.S.-supplied and trained Cambodian troops defending the country.

The fighting turned the rich agricultural country, which once exported rice, into an importer of the Asian staple and clogged the cities with persons who had never left the land.

An estimated 1 million of the total population of 7 million in Cambodia have been killed or wounded and millions more are refugees.

An Early Summons For Kissinger

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — President Ford, faced with a rapidly deteriorating military situation in Southeast Asia, is summoning Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger here earlier than expected, White House sources indicate.

Kissinger, originally scheduled to confer with Ford Friday or Saturday, is now expected here by midweek to review developments in South Vietnam and Cambodia with Ford and to chart U.S. Indochina policy.

Among the new reports Ford got during the night was the fall of Qui Nhon, South Vietnam's fourth largest city, and the exile of Cambodian President Lon Nol.

The President planned to get a report Saturday from Army Chief of Staff Frederick C. Weyand, the former U.S. military commander in Saigon who is now now on a fact-finding trip to South Vietnam.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Monday Ford attributes the South Vietnamese military debacle on two factors: Violation of the Paris peace treaty by Hanoi and "failure of Congress to put up the money" for more military aid to South Vietnam, which Ford feels "affected the morale of the South Vietnemese army."

But he insisted the President was not assigning blame.

Nessen said Ford has been keeping in touch with his advisers on Southeast Asia and feels "a great deal of compassion" for the fate of the war refugees. "He has seen the television stories and the newspaper stories about the situation there," Nessen told reporters.

Kissinger held an extraordinary meeting at the State Department Monday with some of the top foreign policy advisers of past administrations, many of whom presided over the deepening U.S. involvement in Vietnam under Lyndon B. Johnson.

They included former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, former presidential adviser McGeorge Bundy, former Undersecretary of State George Ball and former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

Ford literally ran from reporters questioning him about Vietnam Monday, but he will certainly be asked about the situation in detail at a news conference in San Diego Thursday.

In Bakersfield, Calif., Ford laughed and led a foot race toward Air Force One when he was asked by a reporter to assess the Vietnam situation.

Asked about the incident, Nessen said Ford is going to have a news conference this week and "I hardly think that is running away from the issue."

The President is preparing a major foreign policy address to be delivered before a joint session of Congress about April 10, three days after he is scheduled to return to Washington from his golfing vacation.

Hopes Slim for Million Refugees

By United Press International

American officials say only a slight hope is left for more than one million South Vietnamese refugees who want to get out of Communist-controlled Da Nang.

Communist artillery fire Monday chased off an international flotilla of more than 20 ships that tried to take refugees out of the city, which fell to Communist troops Sunday.

Daniel Parker of the U.S. Agency for International Development said in Washington one ship had been left in international waters off Da Nang "for anyone who can get offshore and get out to it."

"It is both practical and a symbol of hope," he said.

The South Vietnamese government Monday called on North Vietnam to let the refugees go and asked the United Nations to help. Hanoi Radio said the North Vietnamese government would not go along with a cease-fire.

Deputy Prime Minister Phan Quang Dan told reporters in Saigon an estimated 120,000 people managed to get out of Da Nang, most of them to refugee camps near Cam Ranh City, 185 miles northeast of Saigon.

"We are facing a tough situation now," he said. "Our plans were being readapted every day and most of them cannot be carried out because of the fast changing military situation."

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim responded with an appeal "to all who may be in a position to help."

A U.N. spokesman said earlier that the world body's High Commmssioner for Refugees had been in contact with the Viet Cong office in Geneva, but he would not disclose what was said.

Parker, President Ford's coordinator for international disaster assistance, said he believed land routes were still open out of Qui Nhon and other cities to the south. His comments came before the report Qui Nhon had fallen.

He said Nha Trang on the central coast was still under government control and full of refugees from the northern coast and the central highlands, areas that fell to the Communists earlier in March.

Asked if there would be a repeat at Nha Trang of the chaos that disrupted air and sea efforts to evacuate Da Nang before it fell, Parker said "The pressures on Da Nang were so great that complete control was lost early.

"Control is being maintained in the other cities ... except for Qui Nhon, there is not significant miliary pressure in the area. Therefore, we can assume that there will be less panic."

Parker said civilian U.S. authorities were in charge of the evacuation and vowed not to let any of the rescue ships get into danger. "We are playing it completely safe," he said.

The ships off Da Nang were forced to suspend rescue operations Monday because of rocket-propelled grenade fire at small boats carrying the refugees out from shore.

U.S. to Reassess Mideast Policy

By UPI

The United States has recalled its ambassadors to Egypt, Israel, Jordan and Syria to help reassess U.S. policy in the Middle East.

Egypt Monday became the first of the nations involved to make a formal request for resumption of the Geneva peace conference, but diplomatic sources in Cairo said the talks would not start again until the United States comes up with new ideas on peace in the region and the Arab nations agree on how to proceed.

Military sources in Israel said Lebanese army gunners Monday fired artillery shells at laborers fixing a barbed wire border fence near the frontier settlement of Idmit and Israeli cannons returned the fire.

No one was hurt in the exchange.

In Jerusalem, government sources said Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Israeli officials were studying the possibility of talks between Israel and Egypt at some site outside the Middle East.

Cairo sources said Egypt appears to be betting on strong American pressure on Israel to agree to withdraw its troops from two strategic mountain passes and the Abu Rudeis oil fields in the Sinai Desert.

In exchange, the sources said, Egypt would give assurances of no military hostilities rather than a formal nonbelligerency declaration, a difference in terms that was a major factor forcing Kissinger to call off the talks March 22.

Announcing the recall of the ambassadors, a State Department spokesman also said Kissinger will fly to Palm Springs, Calif., this week to consult with vacationing President Ford on new ideas for Middle East accord.

Clemency Program Over

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the passing of the deadline for application to President Ford's conditional clemency program, draft resisters and military deserters may have a long wait before another amnesty offer presents itself.

At midnight Monday, the Justice Department, the Defense Department and the Presidential Clemency Board stopped accepting applications to the three phases of Ford's program.

A House Judiciary subcommittee is planning mid-April hearings to look at Ford's program as well as bills which would provide a broader amnesty. But pro-amnesty groups are not very optimistic about such legislation emerging from this session of Congress.

"Chances for congressional enactment (of a universal and unconditional amnesty) in the immediate future are not good," said Henry Schwarzschild, director of the American Civil Liberties Union project on amnesty.

Schwarzschild said at a Monday news conference that the Ford program was "a depressing failure...punitive in its moral and political assumptions," and to which "well over 80 percent of those eligible have not even applied."

Final figures for applications to the three part program are not yet available.

School Aid Proposal 'Won't Make It'

ALBANY

A Democratic-sponsored Assembly proposal which would add nearly $300 million in state aid to public schools "won't get through the Senate, " predicts Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn (R.-40th District).

The reason? The proposal calls for all the money for the increased aid to come from state income tax, with an amendment that would hike the tax rate on persons earning $25,000 or more from 15 to 17 percent.

"We're in a positon now where we have taxation without mercy," Schermerhorn said . "I'm against any further taxes whatsoever."

Reiterating that "the Democrat's program is just merciless," Schermerhorn said he sees no chance of the proposal making it throug h the Republican-controlled Senate.

Indicating that it is his feeling that money for increased aid to education could be found in Governor Hugh Carey's budget, Schermerhorn was critical of the claim that the budget is cut to the bones. He charged that out of that budget the Democrats have been able to find in the last three weeks some $177 million to bail out the Urban Development Corporation and to preserve the 35-cent fare in New York City.

"He's got all the upstate Democrats singing his song," Schermerhorn said of Gov. Carey.

Schermerhorn was particularly critical of statements by Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey (D.-101st District) concerning the proposal.

Referring to Hinchey's prediction that Ulster County Schools should get about $3 million in added aid, Schermerhorn said Ulster County "has never gotten a fair shake."

"He's making all these grandious promises, but he's not going to get these taxes," Schermerhorn charged.

Pointing out that the $25,000 cutoff point for the tax increase is above the salaries of state legislators by $1,500, Schermerhorn suggested that any tax increase should include the legislators, and that the cutoff point should be lowered to $23,500. "Thw The way it is, it lets the legislators off the hook," he said.

Nevertheless, Schermerhorn is totally opposed to the increase in taxes, predicting that it will drive people out of the state.

Flood Funds Are Threatened

NEW PALTZ

Five communities in Ulster County are threatened with a loss of federal aid for a wide variety of projects and activities in areas subject to flooding, according to Environmental Conser vation Regional Director Warren H. McKeon.

A Survey of the five towns by the Freeman found all aware of the July 1 state-mandated deadline for flood disaster protection with applications in various stages of preparation.

The five towns are Hurley, Olive, Rosendale, Shawanguk, and Woodstock. The rest of the county's municipalities have already complied with the program's application phase.

Mortgage money for homes and business properties in areas not participating by the deadline is also scheduled for termination, as local banks could not get federal guarantees on their loan money.

According to the legislative act of 1973, communities must develop a local flood plan management program acceptable to the Federal insurance Administration, aimed to reduce future flood damages through regulation of new construction occurring in flooprone areas.

In return for regulation of new construction in these areas, the FIA makes subsidized flood insurance available for buildings and contents in the entire community.

Flood insurance, purchased by the homeowner directly from local insurance agents, provides unavailable protection from disastrous flood damage losses. The program is designed to put the burden of cost more on the shoulders of those who build in flood plains than it presently is.

The Department of Environmental Conservation is the state coordinating agency for the program, with one of its roles to assist local communities in the development of acceptable flood plain management programs.

After its deadline date, if a comm nity is not participating, economic sanctions will practically stop all new construction in flood hazard areas as well as making it almost impossible to sell or buy real property in those areas, warned McKeon.

In the Town of Hurley, Clerk Patricia Glass commented that the application for participation in the flood plain program was scheduled for adoption at Monday's board meeting. And the topic was scheduled for discussion Monday night in the Town of Olive, according to Clerk E. Lee Denman.

In Rosendale, Supervisor Richard Glaxer said the town's Environmental Conservation Commission was working on the application, noting that the town had "several top rate people" on that volunteer commission.

Shawangunk Deputy Clerk Margaret Tremper stated that the town board has voted to join the program. And Marjorie Harder, Woodstock town clerk, reported that the board plans to participate by the deadline.

Information on the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 may be secured from Region 3 of the Department of Environmental Conservation at 21 Putt Corners Road, New Paltz, 12561.

What's Up With the Weather?

Spring may be in the air, as an anonymous Kingstonian points out, but it's still playing April fools jokes on the area as evidenced by our Kingstonian's winter garb. But who knows? Maybe the real sign of spring—warmer weather —is right around the corner. (Freeman photo)

Three Firemen Appointed

KINGSTON

Three fire fighters have gained permanent appointment to the Kingston Fire Department, following a six-month probationary period, Chief William J. Schreiber announced today.

The appointment of Edward L. Markle, 27, of 7 Cottage Row was effective Feb. 22. A graduate of Kingston High School, Fire Fighter Markle and his wife Anna are the parents of one son.

The appointments of Fire Fighters Christopher A. Cahill, 23, and Richard T. Salzmann, 22, will be effective April 5.

Both men graduated from Kingston High School and attended Ulster County Community College.

Cahill lives at 157 Bruyn Avenue with his wife, Ann Lynn. Salzmann lives at 366 Pearl Street with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Salzmann.

The appointments of Markle, Cahill and Salzmann, brings the department's strength to 76 men.

In other news from the Kingston Fire Department, Chief Schreiber said that a manufacturer's representative from the Seagrave Equipment Company has indicated that three new fire trucks ordered last year for the city's volunteer forces would be delivered sometine later this month.

Weekend College Plan

A lot of merit is the way we feel about the plan by Ulster County Community College to establish a Weekend College — designed for individuals in the community who are unable to attend classes during the day or at night.

Though the plan is being considered in this area for the first time, it is not a new one. Other colleges, both junior and four-year, have found the Weekend College to be most successful and popular.

According to Dean Robert Markes of UCCC, students in such a college usually can earn a degreee in two years time. Weekend course work often starts on Friday night and continues on Saturday and Sunday.

We endorse the Weekend College plan and we know that many Ulster County residents — particularly those working parents — will take advantage of this community service offered by UCCC.

Those who have been using the excuse they haven't been able to further their education because of lack of time, can plan their weekends and bone up on their studying. We hope the proposal will be put into effect in time for the new school year.

Reassessment Time

Events in the Middle East and in Southeast Asia have dealt two hammer blows to United States policy. In consequence, a broad reassessment is underway in Washington. There are compelling reasons for such a reassessment — and there also is a wide divergence in views as to what ought to be done.

The debacle in South Vietnam leads some to argue that the United States ought to pump a lot more money into the area in a last-ditch attempt to avert disaster for the governments in Saigon and Phnom Penh. This has been essentiallly the administration's view over the past several weeks of debate on aid.

Even the administration may be having second thoughts as to the wisdom of such a course, however. In an exclusive interview with Los Angeles Times reporters a short time ago, President Ford acknowledged that in light of the deteriorating situation in South Vietnam and Cambodia a new look would have to be taken at our position in that part of the world.

Our view is that to pour in more military aid would only have the effect of prolonging the interminable bloodshed in Indochina without promising the eventual defeat of Communist forces. One must also dare to ask the question whether the past and present agony of millions of little people in the region is not worse than whatever might be the outcome of resolving the civil war that has persisted now for two decades.

The situation in the Middle East following Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's failure to achieve a settlement is more complicated, though less immediately traumatic. The danger there is that war may break out again before peace efforts can be re-geared. In less than a month the mandate for the United Nations Emergency Force stationed in the buffer zone between Israel and Egypt will run out, and unless it is renewed hostilities may erupt at any time after that.

Care for Elderly—for Profit

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — "Chain" nursing homes are springing up around the country. Their aim is primarily profit, not tender, loving care.

The latest figures compiled by a Senate aging subcommittee show that despite industry poor-mouthing, profits are growing.

One of the largest chains, for example, increased its profits by an incredible 400 percent since 1969. The average increase for the chain operations was a more modest 116 percent.

The profits are not evil in themselves. But Senate investigators suspect that the chains have taken advantage of lax state laws to gouge the public of medicaid money. Worse, the laws often encourage the mistreatment of patients by rewarding homes with more medicaid funds for ailing patients.

The chain nursing homes have grown up most heavily in states with the most exploitable nursing home reimbursement plans. The investigators suspect that the condition of the state laws are more of a factor in selecting nursing home sites that the size of the local elderly population. Each state picks its own method of reimbursing the homes for care provided. The remibursements come out of state and local medicaid funds. Unfortunately, the three major reimbursement formulas used are easily abused.

Nursing home operators who are so inclined can manipulate them to run up profits at the expense of the taxpayer's pocketbook and the patient's health care.

Here's how it's done:

— Under the "flat rate" system, the nursing home is paid a set fee for each patient it cares for. This encourages the operator to cut back on nursing care, drugs, food, linen and other services in order to save money.

—Under the "point system" method, the nursing homes get a flat fee and $6 more for every "point." This system unwittingly encourages patient mistreatment. If a patient is allowed to sit in his own waste, for example, and becomes bellicose, he can be labeled a "behavioral problem." That's worth eight points, or $48. If he then has to be injected with a sedative, six more points are added. If the patient then lies in bed too long, eight points are added for bed sores.

—Under the "cost related" system, the nursing home operator is reimbursed for his costs. This encourages padding. In New York, for example, the subcommittee discovered nursing homes with several bogus "costs." Some even went to the extent of setting up their own linen and cleaning services at exhorbitant fees, for which they were reimbursed. Sen. Frank Moss, D.-Utah, the subcommittee chairman, said the cost-related system "would make a defense contractor drool."

It's clear that the present system is unfair and inadequate. The care of the elderly, and not maximizing profit, should be the goal of America's nursing homes.

"I think I heard a heartbeat!"

NIXON LIBRARY: More and more, it looks as if the new federal building in Laguna Niguel, Calif., may become the Richard Nixon presidential library.

The latest information, developed by investigators for the General Accounting Office, reveals that the amount of space reserved for the Nixon papers has tripled in the last year to 60,000 square feet.

The GAO sleuths also learned that the government has plans to install a $30,000 vault in the building. Congress last year rejected a request to install a $110,000 safe to store Nixon papers and tapes.

As early as March 22, 1974, we exposed the strange deal by which Uncle Sam took possession of the mammoth, Pyramid-like office building located only 10 miles from Richard Nixon's San Clemente estate.

"The taxpayers are bailing out another giant corporation, Rockwell International, which had been stuck with a lavish, o ut-of-the-way building it couldn't use," we wrote.

"The General Services Administration has agreed to take over the unoccupied building in exchange for government-owned property which the corporation is leasing but would like to acquire."

The GSA, trying hard to push through the strange deal, apparently lied to Government Operations Chairman Jack Brooks, D.-Tex., about the suitability of the space.

Brooks was told by GSA that the Laguna Niguel building "was adequately protected from fire." But investigators for GAO found that GSA has since contracted for $346,000 worth of "space preparation," including $158,000 for fire protection. General fire safety items are expected to run an additional $510,000 in the next fiscal year.

Our story of a year ago also noted that the "government officials who eventually will inhabit the building live 30 or 40 miles away in the Los Angeles area."

The GAO probe confirmed the seriousness of this issue. The Houing Department, in two separate studies, flatly opposed acquisition of the building. But the dogged GSA chief, Arthur Sampson, went ahead with the deal anyway.

Now the building is less that 38 percent reserved and all but 29,220 square feet are to be used by GSA and its own archives and supply services. Our sources have told us that more than 100 separate agencies and departments turned down bids to use the building for offices.

Complicated Contradictions

By William F. Buckley

The paradoxes of the season are best explained in the current article by James Burnham, who though he did not invent the cold war, supplied the working vocabulary of it two decades ago in his hugely influential book, The Struggle for the World.

Mr. Burnham attempts to account for the incongruities at the executive and legislative level, and gives us the following Q and A as betraying the deep inintelligibility of our foreign policy in its present mold. Q. "Mr. President (the date is March 6) the question is raised by many critics of our policy in Southeast Asia as to why we cannot conduct a policy of detente with the two Communist superpowers in the world and could not follow a policy of detente should Cambodia and South Vietnam go Communist. Could you explain that to us?"

The answer, really, is that, in three fumbling paragraphs, the President couldn't. All he said, really, was that we need to try to get on with those great superpowers in the world without whose collaboration we cannot have world peace. That is true. But it is also true that we should try to get on with those minipowers without whose collaboration we aren't getting peace in Indochina.

The contradictions flow out of this schizophrenia. As Mr. Burnham, itemizes them:

"Secretary Kissinger scolds Senator Jackson for lousing up a friendly trade agreement with the No. 1 Communist power by quibbling over the right to emigrate; Secretary Kissinger then scolds the congressional leadership for refusing to vote military aid to be used fighting Communists in Southeast Asia. President Nixon exchanged fulsome toasts with the Communist chiefs at Peking and Moscow; President Nixon authorizes the CIA to destabilize a Chilean regime on the finding that it would end up under Communist domination. The Secretary of State tells us a negotiation with the primary Communist power has made an historical breakthrough toward arms control and limitation; the Secretary of Defense tells Congress it must provide more billions than ever for new supersonic bombers and global submarines."

Mr. Burnham, who is by training a philosopher, is prepared to admit that a skilled dialectician can reconcile these opposites: but this is feasible at a level beyond the powers of a public trained, in the postwar period, in a certain consistency.

After the war, our policy had the benefit of a harnessing bias. It was this: that the Soviet Union was a superpower whose efforts threatened the peace of the world, and freedom in those parts of the world that had it, or sought to develop it. That the containment of the Communist world was possible only by drawing inflexible lines around the perimeter of the Communist world.

Thus we were, at one point, prepared to go to war for Quemoy and Matsu. In our strategic thinking, we did not distinguish them from Berlin. During that period, as Mr. Burnham reminds us, "Congress voted the relevant appropriations by huge majorities. No one leaked classified documents, or yakked about the CIA."

Now we are being asked, really, to punish discrete acts of aggression. We seem to be saying that we must not permit the North Vietnamese to "get away with it." Our concern can hardly be for the misery the North Vietnamese will introduce to the subjugated areas of Indochina. After all, we are prepared to celebrate the felicity that Mao Tse-tung brought to the entire Chinese mainland.

The American people do not, under the new rules, appear to be that exercised over our duty to repel distant acts of aggression. Now that we have been taught to believe that Communism is not a globalist enterprise the containment of which is a corporate responsibility of the free world, the contradictions come out and, inevitably, take over.

Mr. Kissinger can comprehend them all and, in his highest synthesis, understand them. But he cannot make a slef-governing people understand them. They are too complicated.

Nicholas Von Hoffman:

Away From the Barricades

WASHINGTON (KFS)—Let's hope the Portuguese know something about running revolutions that nobody else does. From a distance they look like they're making the kind of classic mess of their country and its institutions that the Left so often blunders into.

The act of nationalizing the nation's banks and insurance companies at one stroke has more of retribution about it than well-thought-out socialism — a response to a feeble attempt at a coup d'etat against the new government by some elements of the Right.

Doubtless one of the reasons for doing it was to deprive the Right of the economic resources to try another and perhaps more dangerous coup. The same results, however, probably could have been achieved by freezing certain people's assets. By proceeding as it has, the new government gets itself involved in a dialect of chaos, repression, thrust and counter-thrust that usually ends in bloody authoritarianism of either the Left or the Right. In either case, the inhabitants lose.

Something of the same sort happened in Chile. Pushed to act too quickly, both by the demands of his followers and by the provocations of his enemies, Allende's nationalization of the economy far outstripped the capacity of sensible planning or the available bureaucracy to carry off such enormous changes. Without ITT and the CIA, Allende probably would have fallen, the victim of a bellywhopper of a stomachache, anyway.

The task is to achieve socialism with freedom, and that's not going to happen the way the Portuguese are going about it. It's hard enough to operate one capitalist bank — look at the hash so many bankers make of it — but to swallow the whole banking system by issuing a decree is inevitably going to lead to the absurd and costly errors characteristic of haste and ignorance. Then, just as inevitably, the government will try and rectify the errors by fiat.

There must be better ways. Some people, like the English economist E.F. Schumacher (see "Small Is Beautiful: Economics as if People Mattered," Harper Torchbooks, 1973, $3.75), have been suggesting some of them.

Schumacher is as unimpressed by private ownership of large corporations as the Portuguese Left, but he says: "Instead of creating a large enterprise by nationalization — as has invariably been the practice hitherto — and then attempting to decentralise power and responsibility to small formations, it is normally better to create semi-autonomous small units first and then to centralise certain functions at a higher level if the need for better coordination can be shown to be paramount."

In other words, the Portuguese are going about it backwards. They're also falling into another trap. They're nationalizing whole industries at one swipe. Schumacher contends it's much wiser to nationalize companies one at a time, so that the new managerial system acquires the experience to do the job.

Centralized, industry-wide socialization also runs the risk of magnifying errors. If you make a mistake, you make it throughout an entire industry, which would not happen if you went at it on a step-by-step semi-autonomous basis.

Schumacher isn't convinced it's a good idea to eliminate private ownership completely. Mixed systems are more conducive to individual liberty and perhaps also to creativity.

For England — it might not work in a country like Portugal — he suggests that, in return for complete tax forgiveness, major firms give local public bodies a 50 percent ownership position in the form of what would be non-voting stock except under certain extraordinary conditions. This public body, which he calls a Social Council, would be composed equally of representatives from unions, picked in much the same way people are picked for jury duty.

The Social Council or the government would receive half the profits, but would not interfere with management unless it felt the public interest demanded it. In that case it would have to go to court to apply for power to vote its stock. The advantages of this approach are that it would "restructure large scale industrial ownership without revolution, expropriation, centralization or the substitution of bureaucratic ponderousness for private flexibility. It could be introduced in an experimental and evolutionary manner."

Small, slow and steady might spell the end of the heroic age of socialism at the barricades, but the firing squads and the political police would disappear, too.

GOP Women Hold State Conference

The winter conference of the Federation of Women's Republican Clubs, New York State, took place recently at Monticello. During 1974, a statewide membership drive was held with awards going to the top three counties. Ulster County participated in the drive under the chairmenship of Mrs. Robert Davidson and Mrs. William Krum, and were awarded Third Place Cerfiticate.

Representing Ulster County in addition to Mrs. Davidson and Mrs. Krum, were Mrs. Emma Aprea, Club president; Mrs. James Rapp and Mrs. Rita Senor.

Many notable speakers were there including Eunice B. Whittlesey, vice chairman for Party Organization, New York Republican State Committee; Constance Cook, attorney, who spoke on International Women's Year; Michael Barrett, assistant program director, New York Bicentennial; Henry Diamond, executive director, Commission on Critical Choices; Mrs. Jane Gilman, attorney, who spoke on U. S. Congress; New York State Assemblywoman Mary B. Goodhue; Mrs. Constance Armitage, president, National Federation of Republican Women.

Mrs. Sally Boland, outgoing president, FWRC of New York State presided throughout the conference. Many workshops were held and new working ideas were brought home to the local clubs throughout the state.

Mrs. James Kelly of Snyder, N.Y. was installed as state president. Serving with her are Mrs. Milton T. Jefferson, Liverpool; Mrs. Bruce C. McGregor Jr., Worcester; Mrs. Edith W. Stacey, Mahopac; Celia Seidman, Newburgh; Mrs. June P. Balduf, Utica.

First Orientation Meeting For Miss Ulster County Entries

The first orientation meeting for prospective Miss Ulster County contestants will be held 7:30 Thursday night, Apr. 3 in Kingston's Holiday Inn. This was announced by the pageant's entries chairman Colleen Crespino. Prospective contestants may be accompanied to this session by a parent, relative or friend.

This year's pageant, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of Ulster County, is scheduled for Saturday, May 17, in the M. Clifford Miller Junior High School. The contest is open to any unmarried young woman, 18 to 28, who lives, works or attends school in Ulster or Greene County. Scholarships are awarded to the winner and two runners-up, the winner receiving a $1,000 award and a chance to compete in the Miss New York State Pageant. Miss New York State then participates in the Miss America contest in Atlantic City.

Entries are still being accepted. Anyone interested in appearing in this year's pageant should contact Colleen Crespino at Ulster Savings Bank, George or Terri Leombruno in Saugerties, or the Chamber of Commerce office.

The reigning Miss Ulster County, Debbie Buchan, will crown the 1975 scholarship winner on May 17.

SHIGEMI MATSUMOTO

Japanese-American Soprano to Conclude 1974-75 Series for Community Concerts

Shigemi Matsumoto, young Japanese-American soprano, will appear in concert on Tuesday evening, Apr. 8 at the Community Theater to conclude the 1974-75 series for the Kingston Community Concert Association. The concert will begin at 8 p.m.

Miss Matsumoto has been hailed as a rising star. Winner of the Metropolitan Opera Auditions while only 20-years-old, the following year she was presented with a contract from a major opera company. Though Miss Matsumoto has been singing since she was 19, she has the distinction of having sung 30 major roles with the most prestigious opera companies in the United States. She has received her education in Los Angeles and earned her BA in Vocal Performance. Elected to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," Miss Matsumoto was also chosen as Japanese Woman of the Year for Southern California and was recently awarded a major grant from the National Opera Institute.

She has performed leading roles with several opera companies including the San Francisco Opera Company, the Western Opera Company, the Portland Opera Company as well as the Augusta and San Diego Opera Companies. Among her repertoire, she includes such roles as Micaela in "Carmen," Norina in "Don Pasquale", both Mimi and Musetta in "La Boheme" and The Burgundian Lady in "Carmina Burana".

Miss Matsumoto, a stunning beauty, is sought after in musical circles. She has been acclaimed by critics as a major talent to be placed in the "star" category. In addition to her numerous operatic performances, she has appeared as opening guest artist with Arthur Fielder in his San Francisco summer "pops" concerts. She was also given the honor of singing at the 25th Anniversary Celebration of the Founding of the United Nations.

In addition, she has appeared as soloist with several symphony orchestras including the San Francisco Symphony under the famed conductor Seiji Ozawa.

Feminist Barbara Deming Defends Jane Alpert's 'Independence'

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

As a feminist, Barbara Deming is far more humanistic than militaristic. But, though she speaks softly, she carries a highly persuasive stick.

Speaking to a large crowd at the Woodstock Women's Center Thursday night, the former civil rights activist and author of several books, addressed herself to "The Crisis in Feminism."

"We have declared our right to feel," she emphasized, "now we must exercise our ability to think!" What she urged her all-woman audience to think about was the call by some highly-placed feminist leaders "to throw Jane Alpeert out of the women's movement;" to rethink Alpert's denouncement by her denouncers.

Alpert, convicted of conspiring to bomb government property, disappeared underground several years ago; resurfaced recently to give herself up; was subsequently sentenced to a proson term. The man with whom she had been convicted in the bombing conspiracy, Sam Melville, was serving time in Attica at the time of the revolt there; died in that revolt.

It was a subsequent letter from the underground by Alpert in which she questioned her former radical life and Melville's influence on her that led to her denouncement by many feminists. "You fast and demonstrate for Attica," wrote Alpert. "I will mourn the death of 42 male supremicists no longer."

Suggesting that the letter simply established the fact that Alpert "is now her own woman," speaker Deming told her Woodstock audience "It is important that women stop playing games. To fear Jane Alpert is to to fear ourselves . . . Don't strike her name from the book of life. I don't think any of us should be thrown out of the movement. Alpert has simply declared her independence, and the most radical work we have to do in the women's movement is create a trust among us, whatever our differences."

Deming's defense of Alpert drew appreciative applause from her Woodstock audience, as did many of her other statements, all aimed at giving feminists a better sense of identity.

"Every woman is caught up in the feminist movement," she said, " whether willingly or unwillingly . . . and it is changing all of us."

Contended Deming: "Women for centuries and centuries have been allowed to be only what we identify with. We have for so long been so much less than what we could have been as individuals." Using an old maxim to emphasize those serious points, she drew laughter with the quote, "I thought I saw two people—but it was only a man and his wife."

Deming, who once spent a period in a Georgia jail for her own political beliefs as they applied to civil rights, is convinced that feminists for a certain period of time now must expect to live with political double vision. "We must see two men," she said, "one an oppressed person and, so, a comrade . . . and one who oppresses us. Such double vision produces vertigo," she admits, while adding, "but there is nothing wrong with our eyes. We are seeing truly at last."

For Deming, however, women's vertigo will end only when they have ended patriarchy. Suggesting that only "patriarchal abuse of pwoer must be destroyed—and not the men themselves—she pointed out that "we look at other human beings as into mirrors, but this does not mean we have to invade another's being."

Summed up Deming: "Men have persuaded us that only we can live through them. We have to start from the beginning. We have to become repossessed. We have to reclaim our right to have mothers. Patriarchy has obscured that right by teaching the child that the mother belongs to the father. Women must turn away from men in certain ways and at certain times to become dispossessed. Darkened mirrors is a beautiful and accurate description of women in their present condition. We have been in the possession of others. We must bring ourselves out of that condition."

Youthful Thespians Entertain

Young People of the Ulster Youth Theatre, under the direction of Elizabeth Askue, have become traveling troubadours as they go about the county with their latest production, "Winnie the Pooh." The young thespians are "on tour" presenting the play for various organizations. The next performances will be presented Saturday, Apr. 5 at the Community Hall in the center of Mammoth Mall. There will be two performances, 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. This program is open to the public. Two of the cast, Judy Nolfo, center, and Liz Kerr, are shown here performing recently for Ruth Wilson who appears to be an attentive audience. (VanAllen Photo)

Mother of a John Has a Gripe ...

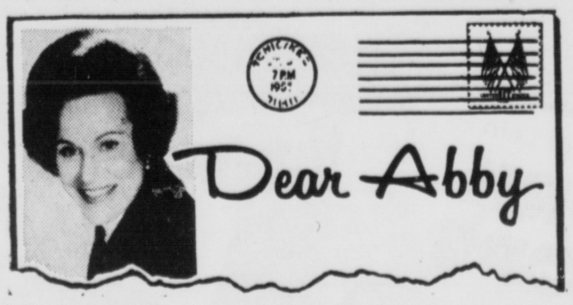
By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. Synd., Inc.



DEAR ABBY: I can't believe it. Here I am a 78-year-old woman, writing to Dear Abby! At age 32, I was married by a Presbyterian minister.

Before we were married my fiance and I discussed our true feelings for each other. We admitted we weren't wildly in love, but we felt that we could be good companions, work together in a compatible way, and have a good life together. And it turned out that way.

After I was 40, I gave birth to two sons. We were very successful in our farming project, accumulated acreage, and became financially well off.

Now, my oldest son's wife tells me that because I married without being in love, I lived the life of a prostitute. She keeps throwing it up to my son that his mother was a "prostitute."

Abby, my husband and I lived together in peace and harmony for 30 years, and we would be together today but death took him from me. Meanwhile this daughter-in-law who calls me a prostitute has a very stormy marriage, and if that's the result of a "love match" I will take my kind of marriage any day.

Would you say that a woman who married without being passionately in love led the life of a prostitute?

NEEDS BACKING UP

DEAR NEEDS: Certainly not! Your reasons for marrying were nobody's business but your own. Too bad you didn't keep it that way.

DEAR ABBY: Recently we had a gathering of friends and family in our home. One of the guests removed his shoes and stockings and proceeded to put his foot up on the coffee table on which I had chips, dips and food for nibbling. (He said his feet itched!)

My husband and I were both upset, but neither of us said anything because we felt it would have been poor manners to correct a guest in our home.

We felt that his wife should have quietly said something to him, but since she didn't, we let it go.

Later, another guest told us that we were wrong to have ignored such gross behavior. How do you vote?

HOSTESS

DEAR HOSTESS: With you. Don't invite him back.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky. Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed stamped (20c) envelope.

Officer's Wives Club to Open Arts and Crafts Gallery

West Point's Spring Atrs and Crafts Gallery sponsored by the Officers Wives Club will be held April 3, 4, and 5. The hours are from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Thursday and Friday and from 10 a.m. to 4.p.m. on Saturday The show will be held on the third floor gallery in Eisenhower Hall.

All of the exhibitors are in some way connected with the military community. The variety on display is a cross section of ideas from everywhere. There will be a large selection of paintings and prints from some local artists. The craft section will include tole painting, stained glass, dough art, frames, ceramics, macrame, string art and more. New entries for the spring show are sculpture, beaded flowers and a book of poetry on West Point.

Items from some of the Officer's Wives Club Spnsored classes will be in an area set aside for display only. This will include pottery, houseplants and rug hooking. There will also be an exhibit of Central American Indian cloth dyeing that is a rare and beautiful folk art.

Something is promised for serious shoppers who have Mother's Day, Father's Day, baby and wedding gifts on their shopping list. Idea collectors are also welcome. There will be hostesses on the floor to answer questions.

Eisenhower Hall is a "cadet only" building and this is one of the few times during the year that there is an area open to the public.

Birth Announced

Seminar Planned

KINGSTON

A seminar on the Community Development Act of 1974 will be held Wednesday at 7 p.m. at Holiday Inn, sponsored by Ulster County Community Action, according to announcement made by Edward Brown, community organizer.

James Billups, presidnet of UCCAC, will introduce the panelists who include Richard Matthews, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Ulster County; Michael Green, associate planner, Mid-Hudson Pattern For Progress; Dr. Mal Michaelson, sociologist, Marist College and Emmie Broughton, representing Mid-Hudson Legal Services.

Brown will give a slide presentation and David Joseph, executive director of UCCAC, will serve as narrator.

In urging attendance at the seminar, Brown, quoting the National Committee Against Discrimination and Housing Inc., said that never before has the Congress and the President so expressly stated that they want citizens to have a voice in their community regarding use of federal funds.

Olive GOP Dinner

OLIVE

The Town of Olive Republican Club will hold its Annual Installation Dinner Dance at the Pheasant Inn Saturday, April 12.

County Legislator Ernest J. Gardner (R-5th Dist.) will be master of ceremonies.

The event, now in its 10th year, had been previously held as a Lincoln Day celebration.

Committee chairmen include: Mrs. John Nadotti, dinner chairman; Antoinette Tennant, hostesses; Mrs. John Iapoche, tickets; Mrs. Charles Davis, decorations; Mrs. LeeRoy Croswell, dais and publicity; and Mrs. Robert Motrie, table floral arrangements.

Congressman McHugh Sponsors Legislation On Financial Disclosure

WASHINGTON

Congressman Matthew F. McHugh (D-27th District) has sponsored legislation that would require full disclosure of personal finances by federal office holders, from President down to congressman and including civilains.

"There was a time in politics and government when such information was considered private and not a subject of public disclosure," the Ithaca freshman congressman said. "The tragic events of Watergate have established that we must have more openness in government and in our electoral process."

Noting that reforms are not accomplished without perserverance, McHugh said, "Bills similiar to the one introduced have been pending since 1946. I believe now is the time to act."

McHugh's bill would also cover "federal policy makers" reaching an estimated 120,000 civilian employes and 16,000 military personnel (with the rank of colonel or above). All elected officials including the judiciary with incomes of $25,000 or (a Congressman earns $42,500) would be required to file annual reports.

McHugh also has filed legislation restricting the activities of lobbyists. Contending that the existing laws are not comprehensvie enough, McHugh declared, "The people of this nation have observed with growing discontent the special influence exerted by those with vested interests... By bringing the role of lobbyists in the decision-making process into the open, I believe this bill will offer a deterrent to improper practices."

Enforcement power would be through the newly-created Federal Elections Commission, rather than congress itself which has been the case since the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. of 1946.

Two Town Justices Are Removed From Board in Hurley

WEST HURLEY

The Hurley Town Board Monday night passed without comment a resoution removing the two town justices from the town board.

The action was in contrast to a previous attempt in May, 1974, to remove the justices, a move permitted second class towns by the state. The previous action was taken to court by a group of eight town residents who charged it would be illegal to elect the new town councilmen in Novenber, 1974. State Supreme Court Justice George L. Cobb agreed, ruling that state law requires biennial elections of councilmen in odd-numbered years.

Monday night's resolution called for two councilmen to be elected on Nov. 4, one for a two year term and the second for a four year term, both to begin Jan. 1, 1976.

The board set a public hearing for 7:15 p.m. on Monday, April 28, preceding the next regular board meeting in the Hurley Fire Hall, to consider the application of Kingston Cablevision for a $1 raise from its present $5.95 service charge. In a letter to the board the firm said that inflation, increased labor costs, higher installation costs and other factors meant that a continuation of the present rate would show continuing losses, and that the new rate would bring an average six percent return over the next five calendar years.

The board received a notice from the Ulster County Board of Health saying it had closed Tabb's Trailer Park on Walton Lane because it was being operated without a permit and raw sewage was exposed on the ground. The parks' tenants were ordered to evacuate by April 1.

The board deferred action on a planning board recommendation that Fred Weidle of Frederick Clark Associates be retained as a consultant on revision of the town zoning ordinance. Croswell said there were no funds in this year's budget to cover the fee (up to $3,000) and suggested it could come from either the contingency or revenue sharing fund. Councilman Jack Rose, noting that social services had been running over budget estimates and would have to be met from contingency, said the matter should be reviewed by the Revenue Sharing Committee before a decision is made. The board will meet with Weidle and planning board members April 7 to discuss the matter.

The board will meet Wednesday, April 9, to discuss authorizing participation in the federal flood control program. Councilman Henry Paul Jr. objected to the federal map outlining boundaries of flood-prone are as along Esopus Creek and around the Ashokan Reservoir, saying it was inaccurate.

In other action, the board:

- Appointed Dr. Elbert Loughran and Dominic Castaldo to fill the unexpired terms of James Fisher and William Colclough on the planning board.
- Accepted the $655 bid of Sherman Moore for the highway department's 1968 International dump truck.
- Passed a resolution governing access to town records, a move necessary to comply with the state's Freedom of Information Law.
- Named LeRoy Weber to a three month probationary appointment as welfare officer. Rose has been serving temporarily in the post.
- Directed Town Attorney Robert MacKinnon to check into the town's legal obligations if it accepts a request from Concerned Consumers of the Mid-Hudson area to join in a suit to prevent Central Hudson from adding fuel adjustment charges to customer bills. The town joined the consumer group in its unsuccessful attempt to have the Public Service Commission declare the charges illegal.

Fittingly, John Wooden Has Gone Out a Winner

Scoreboard Tells Story

The scoreboard tells the story of the close contest as second half got underway Monday night with UCLA holding a slim lead over Kentucky. Bruins pulled away for 92-85 victory and NCAA championship. Pictured under net shooting fot two is UCLA's Pete Trgovich as Kentucky's Mike Phillips (R) tries to prevent hoop. (UPI)

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Fittingly, John Wooden has gone out a winner.

The man who turned out the greatest dynasty in college basketball history did it again Monday night—in his final game of coaching.

If Wooden, the wily Wizard of Westwood, was conducting some kind of psychological warfare when he announced his retirement Saturday after UCLA's 75-74 overtime win over Louisville in the NCAA semifinals, it worked.

SPORTS TODAY

For the 10th time in 12 years, his UCLA Bruins won a national championship. Two days after Wooden's dramatic announcement, his Bruins beat Kentucky's take-no-prisoners defense 92-85.

"UCLA played a tremendous and inspired game," said Joe B. Hall, the Wildcats' coach.

In beating Kentucky for the first time in his fabled coaching career, Wooden used only six players against a team that had been nicknamed, "The Slaughterhouse Five" because of its ability to maul opposition.

Kentucky's defense had been able to knock off the No 1 ranked team in the country, Bobby Knight's Indiana Hoosiers, in the Mideast regionals.

"I just can't believe a team could only play six men against such a fine, physical team as Kentucky and win," said Wooden. "But we did it."

Closing his 27-year UCLA tenure with a remarkable 620-147 record, Wooden won the big title of college basketball with the legendary Kentucky coach, Adolph Rupp, sitting in the stands.

Rupp, now 73, retired as Kentucky's coach three years ago after running up an amazing 879-190 mark. In three meetings with Wooden, he won them all.

But Wooden's 10 NCAA championships were six more than Rupp could put together.

Poker-faced Richard Washington, a slick 6-foot-9 sophomore from Portland, Ore., fired in 28 points for UCLA and was voted the Most Valuable Player of the tournament. All America Dave Meyers added 24 for the Bruins, who were 28-3 in Wooden's final season.

Washington and Meyers offset a 34-point explosion from Kentucky's fine 6-5 senior forward, Kevin Grevey.

"My feelings at this moment are a combination of sadness and happiness,' said Wooden in his farewell post-game interview session. "This was by far our most physical game of the year. But I tell my players they must be in better condition than their opponents.

"Maybe it's the power of positive thinking. But if I can't work them into condition, I try to talk them into it. I have never had a conditioning problem with my UCLA teams."

At 64, Wooden stepped down four years before he had to for a myriad of reasons, which he said he did not want to go into. UCLA Athletic Director J.D. Morgan said after the game that he would have an announcement on Wooden's successor, "in the relatively near future".

However, it will not be Louisville Coach Denny Crum, a former Wooden player and chief assistant. In a hastily called news conference 25 minutes before the Cardinals' consolation game with Syracuse, Crum announced that he would remain in Kentucky to fulfill the final four years of his five-year contract.

Louisville won the third-place game 96-88 in overtime.

For Wooden, the victory came in a season in which he was not supposed to win. A year ago, the Bill Walton-led Bruins were the favorites but had a string of seven consecutive national titles snapped in the NCAA semi-finals at Greensboro, N.C., by North Carolina State.

"We tried to play Kentucky heads up," said Meyers. "They were very physical on the boards but we played a lot of tough board teams this season, like Oregon and Southern California in the Pacific Eight. We wanted to slow things up near the end and set up for the good shot, especially for Richard. He's like (pro star) Bob McAdoo."

Washington, who beat Louisville with a shot with three seconds left Saturday, said Wooden's resignation gave him extra incentive.

"I remember in his pre-game talk tonight, I was thinking I'd better listen because it was his last one," Washington said. "I thought he had to go out in style and ten is a nice round number for championships."

Going Out a Winner

Dave Kingman's a Real Good Listener

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some people are born lucky. They're gifted with such beautiful voices, they sing like birds. Others have all they can do to hum, and still others can't so much as hold a note. In the music world, they're known as listeners, and there you have David Arthur Kingman—he's a listener, a real good one.

"I listened to everybody," he says. "That was my downfall. I listened to too many people."

Some of the people with his new ball club, the New York Mets, say right-handed hitting 6-foot-6 Dave Kingman listens beautifully. Some of those with his old club, the San Francisco Giants, say the same thing but add a conditional phrase.

"He listens, all right," agrees one member of the Giants. "He listens and he tries, but unfortunately he seems to have a concentration span of only three minutes. You tell him something, and he'll forget it three minutes later."

Kingman says that isn't true. He says he simply was given too much advice about hitting adjustments.

"One person would tell me to do this, and another person would tell me to do that," he says. "I was unable to relax. I couldn't have fun out there. Things went badly, and never got better. The pressure just kept mounting."

But that was with the Giants. Now, with the Mets, people approach Dave Kingman wanting to know what suddenly has gotten into him. How come he's the biggest, most terrific, thing to come along for the Mets since Tom Seaver? He has eight home runs, 15 RBIs and a fancy .358 batting average so far this spring and promises to enjoy himself at Shea Stadium this summer following four dismally disappointing seasons in San Francisco.

"Over here," he says, meaning with the Mets, "they've left me pretty much on my own. Phil Cavarretta, the team's batting instructor, said 'I'm gonna watch you for a coupla' weeks and not say anything.' He's been real patient. Oh sure, he talks with me and gives me little suggestions. But he doesn't say 'do it;' he says 'think about it.' I've never had anybody say that to me before."

The first time the Giants saw the huge 210-pound Kingman swing a bat, they were fascinated by him. They followed him and saw him deposit baseballs 450 feet over the fence, and farther, so naturally they hoped he'd do the same thing for them and that was why they drafted him after he received his degree at the University of Southern California.

Kingman did provide the long ball for the Giants, hitting 29 homers for them in 1972, 25 in 1973 and 18 last year. Those figures were more than offset, however, by his .225, .203 and .223 batting averages the past three seasons, and his strikeout ratio, of once every three times up, was merely an added indictment.

"I tried too hard," says Kingman. "I put too much pressure on myself with the opportunity given me. But I think I'll benefit from the whole situation. Certain ballplayers need a change, and I felt I needed a change.

"Now, with the Mets, it's a complete switch, a new situation, a new everything. It's a fantastic feeling being over here."

Kingman is a relatively young man yet at 26. His baseball future still could be all in front of him and he's aware of that. He doesn't hide the fact he always wanted to play in New York. Why? For the same reason Catfish Hunter did and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar does. More exposure, and more opportunities.

"I like the town," he says, "and I've always hit well in Shea Stadium."

Another factor could be that Kingman does promotional work for United Airlines, a company his father worked for for 33 years before he died a year ago. If he does well with the Mets, his possibilities, both on and off the field, are limitless and he knows that.

With the Giants, Kingman really had no one fixed position. He played first base, third base and the outfield for them. He even pitched in a couple of games. The Mets are thinking of him as an outfielder. Later, they may reconsider and give him a shot at first base, but right now he's an outfielder.

As far as Dave Kingman is concerned, there's nothing in the world like baseball.

"It has taught me an awful lot already," he says. "I've found it's not all roses all the time. It's not that easy."

NBA Players Back Kareem

NEW YORK (UPI) — Larry Fleisher, attorney for the NBA Players Association, said Monday he would pull out all stops in assisting the American Civil Liberties Union in combatting the $300 fine levied against Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar by Commissioner Walter Kennedy.

Paul Silas of the Boston Celtics, president of the Association; Wes Unseld of the Washington Bullets and Bill Bradley of the New York Knicks also were adamant in their belief that "all athletes have a right to speak out and that a player's feelings should be not be muffled by the league.

In Milwaukee, General Manager Wayne Embry announced that the Bucks have paid the fine and said, "The Bucks are sending the money with the provision made by the NBA that if Kareem's appearl is successful it will be refuned. We support Kareen but we can't take a chance on his suspension."

Fleisher, a guest speaker at a lunch announcing the joint sponsorship of the NBA Players Association and the YMCAs of the United States in promoting junior basketball competition, said "it was improper for the league office to fine a player for stating his opinion about officiating" in the NBA.

Abdul-Jabbar enlisted the aid of the ACLU after being rapped by a stiff fine for calling referee Jerry Loeber inept in his job.

"The ACLU called me at Kareem's behest," Fleisher said. "They are going to charge the NBA with stifling free speech. It will be a constitutional matter with them. We are going on the theme that Kareem did not do anything "detrimental" to the game with his outburst and we'll fight the $300 fine."

Abdul-Jabbar was soaked $200 for what he said to Loeber in public and another $100 for entering the referees' quarters.

"Players in the past thought primarily of their jobs, but now there is a new breed of athlete," said Silas. "Kareem is the most dominant figure in the game and he speaks out for what he feels.

"The right to speak should not be curbed. I admired Jackie Robinson because he too was a dominant figure in sports and people listened to him. Kareem, too, is knowledgable on what he speaks of."

Unseld said he "wouldn't limit players criticism to officiating, but then I'm not the type of player who gets into any controversies."

Colonels Catch Nets

By U P I

Kentucky handed San Antonio its second straight shellacking Monday night as the Colonels, hoping to grab the American Basketball Association East title from sagging New York, moved into a first place tie with the idle Nets.

In their quest for the division championship, the Colonels and Nets both crushed San Antonio. New York routed the Spurs 130-104 Sunday and Monday night Kentucky won 103-88 behind the 36-point performance of Artis Gilmore.

If Kentucky and New York win their remaining games, they will have tied in the Eastern Division and will play Friday night in Kentucky to decide the championship.

Gilmore hit his first 10 shots Monday night as the Colonels moved out to an early 16-point lead in the first quarter, 34-18, and were never challenged on their way to lifting their record to 56-26.

In the only other ABA game Monday night, Ron Boone pumped in a basket and two foul shots in the final two minutes to push the Utah Stars past the Virginia Squires 103-97.

Simmons' Best Camp

The computerized All Star ballots came out Monday and St. Louis catcher Ted Simmons' name was on it.

Not that it really matters—it is a foregone conclusion that Johnny Bench, if he stays healthy, will be behind the plate when the National league squares off with the American League July 15.

This is not a knock on Simmons' abilities: it's just that Bench has been around a while longer and has rolled up some impressive statistics in his seven years with Cinncinnati.

Simmons has been in the big leagues for only four seasons and a regular for just three. He has hit .304, .303, and .272 in those three years—and last season was his best despite the 30-point drop in batting average. He drove in over 100 runs for the first time and hit 20 home runs.

Simmons was second among catchers in doubles, home runs, total bases and RBI in the National League but the No. 1 catcher in all those categories was Bench.

Still, Simmons only finished third in the voting for the circuit's all star catcher last summer behind Bench and Philadelphia's Bob Boone.

The Cardinals' field general is apparently out to make amends this season and is in his best training camp ever. Simmons had one game this spring in which he hit three home runs—and was walked in the ninth inning to prevent a possibility of four in consecutive at bats.

The switch-hitting backstop clubbed his sixth home run in eight games Monday to spark St. Louis to a 6-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox. He drove in two runs to lift his RBI count to 17 in 20 games.

Bench, meanwhile, was on the bench in favor of Bill Plummer as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Philadelphia Phillies in a rain-shortened game 4-0. Tony Perez drove in three of the Cincy runs.

Nelson Briles and Marty Pattin combined to hold the Baltimore Orioles to just four hits in a 3-0 Kansas City victory, Montreal exploded for a five-run first inning off Houston starter Tom Griffin and coasted home to a 7-1 triumph and Tony Oliva belted a two-run homers to cap a three-run fourth inning and lead Minnesota to a 3-0 victory over the New York Yankees.

Terry Humphrey rapped two doubles and a single to lead Detroit past the Chicago White Sox 5-3, Lenny Randle stroked out three hits in Texas' 5-1 pasting of Atlanta and Rick Manning delivered a two-run single in the sixth to hand Cleveland a 2-0 win over the Chicago Cubs.

Dave Roberts' sacrifice fly scored Johnny Scott and capped a two-run eighth inning rally that gave San Diego a 10-9 win over California, Rennie Stennett poked three hits and drove in two runs as Pittsburgh whipped the New York Mets 4-0 and Mike Hegan, pinch hitting for Hank Aaron, clubbed a threerun homer in the eighth inning to give Milwaukee a 13-11 victory.

Derrel Thomas' single and first home run of the spring and a double and triple by Ed Goodson helped San Francisco defeat Los Angeles 8-1.

Lord O Lynch Favored

MONTICELLO

When Monticello Raceway opened its 18th season on Thursday last week, the featured 6th pace was a tribute to members of organized labor unions in the Hudson Valley and the event was taken by Lord O Lynch who is also starred in tonight's featured pace.

The morning line raters think he will repeat with Tony Del Priore again at the the favorite with a 3-1 rating.

Last week, Del Priore and Lord O Lynch led the pack by three quarters of a length to take the mile in 2:08 flat. Tonight, some of the same contenders — Merry Commander, Gypsy Lyss, Local Spark, Baby Buddha — with Renees Dream, Amigo Roy and Jefferson Crain rounding out the field.

Gypsy Lyss finished second a week ago and is rated 4-1 to get the second choice nod. Local Spark finished third on opening night but only gets 5-1 consideration for this evening.

Lord O Lynch, a 5-year-old horse by Lynch Hanover-Belle Councel, has been seasoned by 12 outings this year and has established a 1-2-4 record, a shade better than fifty percent in the money. His 1975 earnings of $4,792 have boosted his lifetime total to $16,911.

*** *** ***

Turning on a burst of speed around the final turn, Sheila Lobell moved from fourth to the lead and scored a twolength victory over Horoscope and Whatstar Pick in the Raceway's Monday night feature.

Driven by George Berkner, the 8-year-old mare, daughter of A. C.'s Viking, co-owned by Berkner and trainer Ron Gurfein. She turned a 2:10 4/5 mile that rewarded backers $5.20, $3.40 and $3.60.

For Sheila Lobell, who had been away from the races since 1970, it was her second start. She was beaten Thursday night after trying to go wire to wire, finishing second.

The 5-2 daily double paid $42.20 when Radial was driven to an $8.40 win in the first by Robert Petitto. Moot Hill ($4.60) driven by Ralph Sherman rounded out the double.

The best payoff of the night was $52.60 for Star Guy, 10-year-old gelding driven by Fred Heck, who won the claiming pace at 25-1.

There will be no racing on Monday nights until Memorial Day. Sunday matinees start this weekend.

RVLL Tryouts

Rondout Valley Little League will hold baseball tryouts for all registered applicants Saturday, April 5. Softball tryouts will be held April 12.

Lions vs. Rotary Benefit

Town of Saugerties Cancer Fund Chairman, William Freer, (C) smiles as he listens to boasts of Lions Club captain Richie Greco (L) and Rotary captain Larry Thornton (R). Basketball teams representing the two clubs will play benefit basketball game for the Cancer Fund Thursday, April 3, at the Saugerties High School gym.

Two Sophomore Girls On Boys' Baseball Teams

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Two Big Spring High School sophomore girls who began illegal practice March 3 with the boys' interscholastic baseball squad have made the team —legally.

William Drawbaugh, assistant coach at Newville Senior High in south-central Pennsylvania, said that when Lisa Brehm and Vicki Brookes "asked us if they could try out, we said sure.

"We thought they'd just be out for a few nights, and after some hard practice, they'd drop out; but they didn't."

The other side of the Commonwealth Court decision March 19 lifting sex barriers to interscholastic sports may be developing in Eastern Pennsylvania with boys trying out for the girls' softball teams.

Ted Wagner, former director of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association (PIAA), said boys may be playing on girls' softball teams at both West Pittston High School and Neshaminy High School.

At Newville, Coach Drawbaugh said when it became apparent Lisa and Vicki "weren't going to drop out, we had a problem. He hated to tell them they could be on the team but couldn't play in any games.

"But the court decision March 19, and the PIAA Board of Control decision to make it effective immediately instead of next fall, gave us the goahead."

Drawbaugh said the two girls "aren't quite good enough for varsity, but they'll definitely play junior varsity and get some time in varsity games for experience. They'll probably play for the first time next Saturday when we meet Boiling Springs."

"They're nice girls and they work hard," Drawbaugh said. "On one practice Kisa got hit squarely in the forehead from a ball thrown from outfield to infield, and it knocked her down. But she jumped up and said she was okay. Of course we had her checked over, and her mother's a nurse."

Lisa said she tried out for boys' baseball "just because I wanted to see what it's like. I'd played a little neighborhood pickup ball, but not a lot.

"I'm certainly not the best hitter, though I can hold my own. But I have to work on distance throwing and on accuracy."

Lisa said her worst moment came at the first baseball meeting when Head Coach Robert Baker "didn't seem to look at us. It was a strange feeling and may have been just my imagination.

"But at practice he treats us the same as anyone else, and he has been very fair.

"The boys on the team, well...some pretty much ignore me, some want to help, and some make a big joke of it."

Lisa's father, Donald is a Carlisle High School biology instructor, and Lisa said she "thinks he's all for it. As for Mom, it's hard to tell her reaction. "I have no ideas about major leagues; it's just that we have no girls' baseball team at Big Spring, and I want to play. It's not as hard, physically, as girls' basketball."

Shelightner: 1870 In ABC

KINGSTON

Hall of Famer Big Bob Shelightner fired his second 1800 all-events series in succession with 1870 to pace the Kingston Gold Classic team to an in-the-money 2742 score in the American Bowling Congress tournament at Akron Ohio.

Shelightner anchored the team shooting with 234-599, then posted 629 in a money-winning 1139 doubles with Jim Rose, who furnished 510. Big Bob then rolled a hat trick 642 series off lines of 200, 229 and 213 in the singles.

Ken LaCasse posted 591 in the team event. LaCasse and Bob Burgher rolled 1097 doubles and John Hanaman and Mike Cashara paired for 1042. None of the other Gold Classic bowlers cashed in either singles, doubles or all-events.

Ken Acquiviva State Finalist

KINGSTON

Ken Acquaviva's accomplishments were inadvertantly omitted from the Freeman's Sunday report of the YMCA Boys State Swimming and Diving Championships which were held at Cornell University.

Acquaviva was one of four Kingston "Y" swimmers to qualify for the finals. He posted a 1:00.64 in the preliminaries of the 100 butterfly and eventually took fifth place with a 1:01.87 in that event. He also was 12th in the 50 freestyle with a time of 25.1 seconds.

Foolish Pleasure Hurting

HALLANDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Foolish Pleasure, the 1974 juvenile champion and early favorite for next month's Kentucky Derby, suffered cuts on both front hooves during the running Saturday of the Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park.

John L. Greer, owner of Foolish Pleasure, said Monday both of his colt's front hooves were cut in the frog area at the rear, but the right hoof was the more serious. He said the injuries would put the horse out of training for about a week but not jeopardize his future racing career.

Greer said he thought the cuts could have been sustained over loose pieces of coral on the track.

It Wasn't Bobby's Night

By U P I

A capacity crowd of 10,519 in Winnipeg was hoping for hockey history Monday night but came away disappointed.

The crowd had massed to watch superstar Bobby Hull of the World Hockey Association Jets attempt to make history. Hull entered the game against the expansion Indianapolis Racers with 75 goals, one short of the pro record of 76 in one season set by Phil Esposito of Boston of the rival National Hockey League.

But the veteran Hull, who pumped in three goals Sunday night to reach the 75-goal mark, was able to get off only one official shot on goal early in the game as Winnipeg rolled to a 4-1 victory over the Racers.

Veteran Howie Young's two first-period goals sparked the Jets' victory. Young opened the scoring at 1:35 and added his 16th goal at 15:25 as Jets took a 2-1 lead. Veli Pekka Ketola and Anders Hedberg, with his 49th goal, also scored for Winnipeg. Jim Wiste had the only Racer goal.

In the only other WHA action Monday night, the San Diego Mariners defeated the Edmonton Oilers 4-1 in a game postponed from Sunday night when bad ice prevented the start.

Norm Ferguson and Joe Hardy each had a goal and an assist to pace the Mariners. Gene Peacosh, Rick Senes and Kevin Devine were the other San Diego scorers. Blair MacDonald and Murray Kennett scored for the Oilers.

Pasarell Upsets Smith

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Charles Pasarall of Puerto Rico upset sixth-seeded Stan Smith Monday as the second annual American Airlines tennis games opened at Margaret Court's racquet club ranch.

Pasarall, unseeded, defeated Smith 7-6, 3-6, 6-1.

In another upset, unranked Phil Dent of Australia defeated eighth-seeded Roscoe Tanner of the United States, 6-4, 6-7, 7-6.

Smith, who lost to Pasarall in their last meeting, said it was the first time he had played outdoors since February and said the 25-mile-an-hour winds affected his game.

"I played point-for-point waiting for the conditions to have an effect on Stan's game," said Pasarall. "I concentrated on getting his serve back and letting him make the errors."

Pasarall joked about the fact that he was not seeded and said, "I don't believe in rankings."

"I made it to the finals in Sao Paulo against Rod Laver and wasn't even seeded," Pasarall said. "The next week I was seeded and lost in the first round."

Hurley LL Sets 1975 Tryouts

WEST HURLEY

Tryouts for the Town of Hurley Little League will be held Saturday, April 5, for persons 9-12 years old and Sunday, April 6, for persons 10-11 years old starting at 1 p.m. at the West Hurley Firehouse Field.

All persons 9 to 12, who wish to play in Little or Minor Leagues, must appear at the tryouts. In the event the tryouts group is postponed because of rain, the tryout for that age group will be held the following weekend at the same time and place.

Machnik Named

WEST HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Dr. Joseph A. Machnik has been named athletic director at the University of New Haven.

The appointment was announced Monday afternoon by university President Dr. Philip Kaplan.

Machnik, who had been serving as acting athletic director since November, officially replaces Donald Ormrod, who resigned last October.

Hearing Loss is not a Sign of Old Age

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

Send for this non-operating model now. Wear it in the privacy of your own home to see how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit. No wires lead from body to head.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 9652, Beltone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria Street, Chicago, Ill. 60646.

CORE Head's Son Faces Rape Charge

NEW YORK (UPI) — A teenaged son of black leader Roy Innis today was charged with raping a young woman in an apartment rented by the Congress of Racial Equality, (CORE), the organization his father heads.

Police said Alexander Innis, 19, was arrested about 4:40 a.m. on the complaint of a 20year-old woman.

The woman was released after being examined at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center. Police said she had no visible injuries.

A police spokesman said the woman reported that she went to the apartment about 1:30 a.m. to visit her sister who was there with a male friend.

The apartment is a large one rented by CORE and used by persons associated with the organization when they visit New York.

At 2 a.m., after the woman's sister and friend left, the woman charged that Innis forcibly raped her in the apartment.

It was not immediately clear why the woman had remained in the apartment after her sister left and it was not known whether the younger Innis knew the woman before the alleged incident.

The woman said she returned to her own apartment and called the police who arrested Innis at the CORE apartment. He offered no resistance and gave the apartment as his home address.

The elder Innis was elected chairman of Harlem CORE in 1965 and succeeded Floyd McKissick as head of the national organization in 1968.

Demonstrates At Court

NEW YORK (UPI) — Accused bomber Patricia Swinton and 50 sympathizers demonstrated outside a federal court Monday to protest a grand jury trying to determine who harbored her during six years as a fugitive.

She charged that federal prosecutors were abusing the grand jury process.

Demonstrators carried placards reading, "Stop the grand jury."

Mrs. Swinton, who was arrested in Vermont last month as a suspect in eight antiwar bombings in New York City in 1969, said she believed codefendant Jane Alpert was to testify before the grand jury.

Miss Alpert, who surrendered last November and later was sentenced to 27 months in prison, was known to be in the court building, but not before a grand jury.

Mrs. Swinton is free on $200,000 bail awaiting trial, possibly in May.

Last Monday, Judge Milton Pollack dismissed Mrs. Swinton's motion to block Miss Alpert and a third defendant, John David Hughey, from testifying. Her lawyer, Frederick Cohn, contended it was improper for the prosecutor to coerce testimony and subject a witness to possible contempt or prosecution for perjury.

Mrs. Swinton, a divorcee and the mother of a 9-year old daughter, was the last of four suspects to be taken into custody in the radical bombings in which 21 persons were injured.

The fourth accused bomber, Samuel Melville, died during the 1971 Attica prison riot.

Targets of the bombings included a federal office building and an armed forces induction center.

Thruway Service Manager Robbed at Gunpoint

MALDEN

Police are seeking two suspects following an armed robbery early today near the Thruway service area at Malden in which the two thieves made off with more than $1,200 from the night manager of the service station.

State police said the manager, Steven Reeves, was on his way to the bank when the robbery occurred at about 1:40 a.m.

Reeves was unlocking a service gate when one of the suspects, armed with a small caliber handgun, emerged from the darkness and ordered Reeves to drive along the service road to Malden Turnpike, a few hundred feet away, troopers said.

At Malden Turnpike, the robber ordered Reeves to toss a bank deposit bag out the window. The gun-toting thief then got out of the car, scooped up the bag and fled in a getaway car parked nearby, with another person at the wheel, police said.

The robbers made off with $1180 in U.S. Currency, $6 in Canadian currency and $30 in travellers checks, authorities noted.

According to police, the getaway car— last seen heading east on Malden Turnpike, may have been a 1970 or 1971 Oldsmobile station wagon. Police had no description of the driver. The other suspect, however, was described as a white male, about 25, 5-feet, 10-inches tall, of slim build and sporting a mustache. He was wearing a green hooded top and blue jeans.

Saugerties Town Police and state police participated in the initial investigation.

Burglary Arrest Of 4 City Youths

KINGSTON

Four city youths who were allegedly burglarizing a house at 38 Pine Grove Avenue Monday night were caught in the act by detectives and uniform personnel of the Kinston Police Department and were arrested on multiple charges.

Arrested during the alleged burglary at 8 p.m. were Bart Robins, 16, of 135 Elmendorf Street, John Burris, 16, of 142 O'Neil Street and two juveniles who were not identified.

Robins and Burris were both charged with second degree burglary and conspiracy to commit burglary in the second degree. Robins was additionally charged with two counts of endangering the welfare of a child. They were held for a city court appearance. The juveniles were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Meanwhile, over $1,000 worth of items was taken in two separate burglaries reported to Saugerties Town Police late Monday.

Police said some $700 worth of band equipment was reported missing from a Stoll Road residence, where burglars pried open a door.

Two portable televisions, a stereo and a Masonic lodge gavel were among the items reported missing in a burglary at a Blue Mountain Road residence. Entry to the residence was gained through a window, police said.

Fischer May Lose World Chess Crown

NEW YORK (UPI) — Edmund M. Edmondson, executive director of the U.S. Chess Federation, said today he expects world chess champion Bobby Fischer to lose his title by default at midnight tonight.

Edmondson, a retired U.S. Army colonel who said he talked at length with Fischer in South Pasadena, Calif., last week, said the champion would pass up a chance at the $5 million world championship purse offered by the Philippines government by not accepting new rules laid down by the International Chess Federation.

"It is tragic for Fischer, for world chess and for Karpov," Edmondson said.

Edmondson said he expected the world would have a new champion "on paper" by Wednesday.

The international federation, called FIDE, is expected to award the title to the Russian challenger, 23-year-old Anatoly Karpov, if Fischer does not accept the new rules. Karpov already has cabled his acceptance.

Karpov won a series of eliminatory contests for the chance to challenge Fischer. Those he defeated included Boris Spassky, the Russian Fischer crushed in 1972 to win the world title.

"I have the feeling Fischer is not even going to bother to reply to FIDE," Edmondson said.

Last week the FIDE executive committee, meeting at Bergen, the Netherlands, turned down a demand by Fischer that the champion retain his title if the championship resulted in a 9-9 tie. FIDE accepted his other demand that the match have an unlimited number of games, instead of a 36-game limit.

FIDE, which has its headquarters in Holland, gave both champion and challenger until midnight tonight to accept the executive ruling.

Mt. Marion Warning On Water

MT. MARION

All residents of Mt. Marion have been asked by the Ulster County Health Department to boil their water following the discovery Monday of a break in the water main serving the community.

Health officials said the cause of the break was not immediately known. Repair work was underway today. While chlorine and pressure levels were reported to be no problem, health officials said the "boil water" order was issued as an added precaution.

The water system serves about 600 people, officials estimate.

Woman Is Hospitalized

KINGSTON

An elderly city woman was hospitalized Monday afternoon after being struck by a car while crossing Fair Street.

Injured in the mishap was Edythe VanWagner, 78, of 143 Clinton Avenue. She was listed in satisfactory condition today at Kingston Hospital.

She was struck by a car driven by James E. Showers, 24, of 59½ Pine Grove Avenue, which was turning the corner from Main Street onto Fair Street when the mishap occurred.

No summonses were issued in the 3:25 p.m. accident.

SHERIFF'S SALE

By virtue of an execution issued out of the County Court, County of Ulster, I, the undersigned Sheriff of Ulster County, have seized all right, title and interest which the defendant, Donald Mahoney, had on the 23rd day of May, 1974, or subsequent thereto, of, in and to the followint described premises, which I shall offer for sale at public auction as the law directs, at the Ulster County Court House, in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster, New York on the 17th day of April, 1975, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, to wit:

ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND with the improvements thereon South of the holdings of the State of New York used for the operation of the Mid-Hudson Bridge and which land herein described is situate on the West and East sides of Oakes Road in the Town of Lloyd, Ulster County, New York, and more particularly bounded and described as follows:

BEGINNING at a point in the center line of Oakes Road which marks the Southwest corner of lands of Raymond Feasel; thence along the South line of the Raymond Feasel tract to a point on the West line of the Penn Central Railroad right-of-way (formerly New York Central); thence Southerly along the West line of said railroad right-of-way to a point which marks the Northeast corner of lands of Robert Feasel; thence Westerly along the North line of the lands of Robert Feasel 105 feet more or less to a point in the center line of Oakes Road; thence North along the center line of Oakes Road to a point which marks the Northeast corner of lands now or formerly of Chester Southworth; thence in a Westerly direction along the North line of lands of Southworth 132 feet more or less to a point which marks the Northwest corner of the Southworth tract; thence along the West line of lands of Chester Southworth 140 feet to a point; thence Westerly along the North line of an unimproved parcel reputed to be owned by Chester Southworth to a point in the East line of an abandoned road identified as Little Italy Road; thence Northerly along the East line of Little Italy Road and the South line of lands owned by the State of New York to a point in the West line of lands now or formerly of Fred L. Hegeman; thence South along the West line of Hegeman 53 feet more or less to the Southwest corner of said Hegeman tract; thence East 136.15 feet more or less to a point in the center line of Oakes Road, and thence North along the center line of Oakes Road to the Southwest corner of lands of Raymond Feasel, the point or place of beginning.

The above described premises has a well situate thereon which is the source of water for the improved parcels owned by Fred L. Hegeman, Robert Feasel, Chester Southworth and the residence on the premises above described. The premises to be conveyed herein are subject to the right of usage, repair and access by all or any of the property owners whose residences are supplied by water from the aforesaid well.

The above described premises are also sold subject to rights of way of public utilities, covenants, conditions, restrictions and easements of record if any.

Being a portion of the premises devised to John V. Keating and Edward S. Keating as tenants in common in the Last Will and Testament of Joseph Keating who died a resident of Dutchess County, New York, in 1967. Edward S. Keating died testate on June 7, 1967 and his Will was admitted to probate in the Dutchess County Surrogate's Court on July 15, 1968 and by virtue of the provisions in his said Will, John V. Keating received the life use of Edward S. Keating's Interest in the premises and the fee interest in the premises held by Edward S. Keating was devised equally between Edward S. Keating Jr. and Marie C. Reilly, son and daughter of Edward S. Keating.

SUBJECT to rights of tenants in possession.

Subject to previous conveyances by Joseph Keating during his lifetime or conveyances made by his heirs or next of kin subsequent to his demise.

For balance of description see rider attached.

RIDER to be attached to and form part of mortgage as made by Donald A. Mahoney to The First National Bank of Highland, dated December 9th, 1969, in the amount of $4,000.00, covering property Town of Lloyd, Ulster County, New York.

Balance of description:
it is the intent of the grantors herein to convey all the land devised by Joseph Keating south of the holdings of the State of New York for the operation of the Mid-Hudson Bridge and which realty was reputedly obtained by Joseph Keating from Charles M. Clay.

BEING the same premises as described in a deed from John V. Keating, Edward S. Keating, Jr., and Marie C. Reilly, to Donald A. Mahony, dated November, 1969, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office.

In addition to the note and/or obligation above mentioned, this mortgage is intended to secure and does secure any and all further loans to or indebtedness owed or to be owed by the Mortgagor to the Mortgagee and it is stipulated and agreed that the maximum amount secured by this mortgage at any time in the future, shall be the stated principlal amount of this mortgage. The obligation of the Mortgagee to make further or future advances or re-advances shall be optional with the Mortgagee. Further advances or re-advance may be made by the Mortgagee under this provisions to the present or to any future owner of the mortgaged premises.

And it is expressly agreed that this mortgage is given to secure the paymet of the sums advanced hereon including any and all future advances which may hereafter be made by the mortgagee to the mortgagors or to any subsequent owner of the mortgaged premises at any time before the indebtedness secured by this mortgage is paid, but in any event, the maximum amount secured by this mortgage or intended to be secured or which under any contingency may be secured hereby is not to exceed the principal sum of ths mortgage at any time.

The undersigned acknowledges that at least three business days have passed since (a) the acceptance by the undersigned of the commitment for this loan; (b) the delivery of disclosures required under the Truth in Lending Act; and (c) the receipt by the undersigned of a Notice of Opportunity to Rescind; and that the undersigned has elected not to cancel the transaction of which this mortgage is a part.

Your Astrograph

Wednesday, April 2, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful how you conduct yourself in front of others. Your image is very fragile for the next couple days.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have a tendency to jump to unwarranted conclusions. Hear others out before making hasty judgments.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Business dealings with friends at this time are more complicated than usual. Be wary — or you'll be burned.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't treat lightly legal involvements today or tomorrow. A mistake could prove costly later. Act only on advice of counsel.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is not a day to tackle tasks beyond your talents and capabilities. Trying to impress others will have the opposite effect.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't count on others today if you're involved in a risky situation. Don't buy a big deal or a dime's worth, sight unseen.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An issue between two persons of whom you're very fond will arise today. You'll find yourself in the middle. Arbitrate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you don't take the time to give subordinates clear-cut instructions, there's no way you'll get hoped-for results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll have to count your pennies today. Pay past obligations before assuming new ones. Manage money prudently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your actions could cause some hard feelings today. You're too anxious to serve your own interests. Be careful whose toes you step on.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're too easily put upon today. You could later resent a commitment so think before you volunteer.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Stay out of situations with friends today where money or things change hands. You're likely to feel later you got the short end.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS

GIFT: (Q.) I met Cindy last August and liked her a lot but never did ask her for a date. At Christmas I gave her a nice piece of jewelry. She said she was going to wear it all the time.

Later her brother told me Cindy didn't like me and my gift was a bribe. I was shocked because I don't think dirty. I think sex before marriage is wrong.

Two weeks ago I asked her for a date and she said no. Later her brother told me she would never date me. I asked her about this and she said she didn't want to date all the boys she knew.

Do you think I tried to bribe her? Do you think she hates me? Should I give up on her? — Surprised in Alabama

(A.) I do not believe you tried to bribe Cindy, or that she hates you. She just does not care for you. You were presumptuous to give her the gift when you knew so little about her.

The gift was a mistake, but count it a lesson learned, and therefore of benefit to you. Next time, with another girl, get to know her better before you give her jewelry or anything of significance.

Feeling as she did, Cindy should not have accepted the gift from you.

And Cindy's brother should mind his own business.

But from now on those will be problems for Cindy and her brother — not you. Because you will no longer be involved with them — that is, if you are wise.

Win at Bridge

Look for That Extra Chance

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Bridge is a game full of adages — "second hand low; third hand high"; "cover an honor with an honor"; "aces are made to take kings"; "lead from longest and strongest". They all form a litany that makes a Gregorian chant seem brief. One of the standard admonitions for declarers is to attack your best suit.

But just as good declarers learn to postpone finesses until other avenues of play are exhausted; they should also be alert to instances when weaker suits should be attacked first in the play of a hand.

Today's declarer was a firm believer in adages and standard admonitions. He won the king of spades; played a club to the king and a club to the ace. When that suit failed to split; he tried the diamond finesse. The result — down one.

Since he was always going to make the hand if clubs split; declarer should have given himself an extra chance by FIRST playing the heart suit. With a three-three division; the ninth trick would be assured. The extra dividend occurred here. With the queen and 10 falling in the East hand the play of the third round of the suit toward the nine in dummy's will produce the game-going trick.
